LO: To retrieve and infer answers from a text.

Read p 51 - 58.

Task 1: p 51 - 58

1. Replace underlined words with synonyms: Puck began to grin, but he stopped when he saw the sorrow in his master's eyes.
2. Circle the nouns, underline the verbs and put a rectangle around the adjectives in this sentence: Oberon, Titania and Puck faded into the pale morning light.
3. Why doesn't Titania notice Puck or Oberon?
4. What happens to the four lovers at the end of the story?
5. How could you draw a picture of the woods using evidence and descriptions from the story?

Task 1:

1. Read to the bottom of page 52. How might Oberon be feeling as he watches Titania and Bottom doze?
2. What significance do woods or forests have in other stories you've read? Explain.
3. Were you glad when Oberon and Titania made up with each other? Explain.
4. Do you think the four lovers will live happily ever after? Explain.

Task 2

1. Read to the end of page 55. Do you think Oberon and Titania will argue again? Use evidence from the story to support your answer.

Task 3: p51 - 58

Read to the end of page .

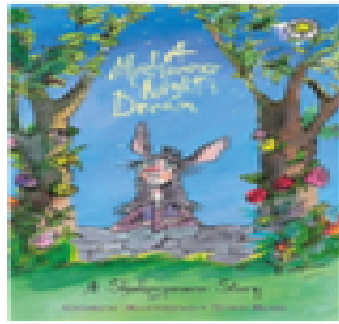

1. Who is your favourite character in this story? Why?
2. Who do you think is the most foolish character in the story? Why?
3. Summarise all the ways in which this story is similar to another romantic comedy.

4. At the end of the play, Puck says:

"If we shadows have offended, Think but this, and all is mended: That you have but slumbered here While these visions did appear. And this weak and idle theme, No more yielding but a dream." How is a play similar to a dream?

Reasons for selection and synopsis

This comedy follows the adventures of four young Athenian lovers as they venture into an enchanted wood. The King of the Fairies, Oberon, and his wife Queen Titania are at war and a mischievous sprite named Puck is around too to cause mischief and mayhem. As a group of actors also venture into the woods to rehearse a play, a hilarious game of mistaken identity, magic, fantasy and chaos begins. A delightful story!
